Introduction to Supervised Learning

It is the most popular and well established learning paradigm. It is used when human can do the task but cannot explain it in an analytical way, when the task changes in a brief time multiple times, when the cost of human labour is excessive.